

At the Maya villa nestled in the sleepy village of Aranwella close to Tangalle; we were surprised to discover that we were its only guests! A sensitively restored late 19th century 'walauwa', this chic sanctuary is situated in a serene estate complete with a 20 metre midnight blue pool overlooking lush green paddy fields. What a view!

As we indulged at day at the beach, we could help but spread the 1883 word!

Two days were spent at the luxury beach villa Ambalama, near the historic town of Galle. With only four double bedrooms, the villa makes for the perfect place to book in its entirety with friends for a chilled out, beachside retreat.

With a large living and dining room, the villa's communal area leads out into a broad terrace and a large infinity pool overlooking the ocean. Pool or ocean? Tough call... this place really has it all.
